Pamplin Bank Closed

The State Bank of Pamplin failed to open its doors for business on last Monday and is in the hands of State examiners, who report a shortage in the accounts of Mr. S P. Loving, the cashier, of about forty thousand dollars.

The last statement published as of February 28, 1928, showed the resources of the bank to be $425,415.45, deposits of $382,767.76, capital $25,000, surplus $10,000, undivided profits $5,187.09, loans $302,925.83.

Mr. Loving has been ill in a hospital at Richmond for some weeks, but when the shortage was reported to him he came home and on Tuesday was placed under arrest and bailed in the sum of $15,000 to await trial at June 1st term of the circuit court of Appomattox county. It is understood he admits a shortage of $35,000. He is bonded for $20,000 and this together with the bank's capital and surplus it is not believed that the depositors will suffer any losses, but it must be understood that officers of the bank if liquidation is decided upon must have time to realize on the resources of the bank before depositors can be paid in full.

It has not been decided yet by the board what course will be pursued, but the public is assured that every precaution will be taken to protect the depositors of the bank, and if all shortage is made good the bank will again open for business, which will afford a great convenience to the people of that section of the State.

No other bank in the county is effected in any way by the closing of this bank and business in the town of Pamplin is going on in its usual custom and there is no apparent apprehension of loss to those who had money in the bank.

Appomattox Park

Richmond and Lynchburg delegations will present to the Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans, which convenes to-day at Little Rock, Ark., a resolution heartily favoring the establishment of a national military park at Appomattox.

The resolution was prepared by Howell C. Featherston, chairman of the committee of the Lynchburg Lions Club having in charge the movement on behalf of that organization for the establishment of such a park.

GENERAL FREEMAN SPONSOR

Col. Joel Flood, of the Appomattox Chamber of Commerce, which has also shown an enthusiastic interest in this subject, presented the resolution to the Richmond delegation and it is understood that it will be offered at Little Rock by General W. B. Freeman, of R. E. Lee Camp of Richmond, and seconded by Commander R. G. Wood of Garland Rodes Camp of Lynchburg.

The resolution, perhaps for the first time stresses the fact that no great national memorial has ever been erected to the contenders in the greatest war ever fought on the western hemisphere and in which both sides are united in this nation, is as follows:

"Whereas there has been inaugurated by certain patriotic and civic organizations of the state of Virginia a movement to establish a national military park on the famous field at Appomattox, where terminated the greatest war ever fought in the western hemisphere; and

"Whereas the records of American valor are the common heritage of all the people of our nation, and are local to no section: and

"Whereas the nation has already delayed too long the establishment of a great national memorial to the valor of the men who contended in the struggle, which gave American manhood well nigh its supreme test and out of which came the spirit which has since made us victor in two great foreign wars and over many domestic problems of peace:

"Now, therefore, be it resolved by the Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans in annual meeting assembled, that this organization heartily favors the establishment of a memorial military park at Appomattox as a memorial to the valor of the two magnificent armies which cemented their blood into the greatest nation on earth.

"Resolved further that copies of these resolutions be sent to Grand Camp of the G. A. R., to the secretary of war, to R. E. Lee Camp, C. V., at Richmond, and to Garland Rodes Camp, C. V., Lynchburg, Virginia.

Independent Tobacco Warehouse

Plans are being rapidly completed for the opening in Lynchburg next autumn of a tobacco warehouse in the building known as the Martin Warehouse, corner of Commerce and Tenth streets, by C. R. Morton, formerly of Charlotte county, and C. W. Potts, formerly of Petersburg, who last year operated a warehouse in Appomattox. The lease was signed yesterday with Tyree and Wilkins, acting for Memorial Hospital, which has become owner of the building under the will of Mrs. Max Guggenheimer to whom it belonged. A lease held by Lynchburg Tobacco Warehouse Company expired May 1, it was said yesterday by the realtors.

This is the first time the Lynchburg Tobacco Warehouse Corporation has had opposition since the closing of the Cooperative Association Warehouse which was operated in the building leased yesterday to the new promoters. The new lease gives Messrs. Morton and Potts occupancy of the building July 1, and improvements will be made prior to that date, it was said yesterday.

The warehouse operated at Appomattox last year by them will not be reopened this season, Mr. Morton said over long distant telephone when asked about the matter yesterday, and he said that he and Mr. Potts will come to Lynchburg to reside. The warehouse here will be in full operation for the coming season, Mr. Morton said—Lynchburg News.

Julian Pugh

We have been called to witness the sad death of this young man since writing last. Julian was one of our over-sea boys in the World War and had been in bad health for sometime, but gradually grew worse and the hot days last week were more than he could survive. He died last Saturday a. m., at 12:45 o'clock. The funeral services were held at his home last Sunday p. m., at 3:15 o'clock and interment in the family burying ground at his home. Services were conducted by Revs. Goad and Trent. He was a good christian boy, and a large crowd of sympathizing friends were present to show their last tribute of respect.

The pall-bearers were over-sea boys, Travis and Wiley Woolridge, Rexford Martin and Dean Pugh with Courtney Harvey and John Woolridge as supply for the two vacancies.

Appropriate songs were sung at the home and at the grave. The flowers were pretty and he was laid to rest by his brother, Grover, who proceeded him to the grave a few years ago.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pugh. He leaves to mourn their loss his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Baldwin near Pamplin, and Mrs. Travis Woolridge, and two brothers, Willie Frank and Esmond Pugh.

The family has the sympathy of a host of friends in this hour of deep grief.

TRACES OLD RACE FOR FREEMASONRY

Briton Trails Ancient Symbols of Order.

Amarillo, Texas.—The trail which he has followed for 22 years in quest of proof of the existence of an ancient race to which he believes the foundations of the modern Freemasonry may be traced has brought Dr. John Winthrop Sargent to the United States.

He is in Texas to continue his research, which has taken him through Mexico, Central America and most of the South American countries.

Doctor Sargent is an explorer and director of the Dr. W. H. K. Staver expedition of the British Royal society and a nephew of the late John Singer Sargent, the painter.

By tracing the culture of this race through pottery and monument designs Doctor Sargent says he has become convinced that its civilization was of even a higher order than that of the ancient Egyptians. He says he found proof that that race had a knowledge of irrigation superior to that of modern times.

First evidence of the race in the United States was found at Three Rivers, N. M., he says, and the trail was continued to this vicinity.

The two cultural motifs which he especially seeks portray a man standing with arms upraised, one arm at right angles with the other, and a deer with three arrows piercing its breast.

"These two motifs," he declares, "have a decided bearing on an ancient society which has come down to the present and which is found in the Masonic lodge."

Doctor Sargent hopes to go to Nicaragua to continue explorations which were terminated last December 13, when Sandino, the rebel leader, ordered him out of the country within six hours.

Silence of 30 Years Is Broken by Death

Warsaw.—After thirty years of self-imposed silence, Samuel Frommer is dead in the Ghetto of Kozotow, in Galicia. For three decades Frommer had not spoken a word.

Frommer as a young man quarreled with his wife and in the height of his anger expressed the wish that she might be burned alive.

Within a week his house took fire and Mrs. Frommer and their two children died in the flames. Frommer, of a mystical character, saw in the coincidence an evidence of heavenly wrath. He took public vows "never again to make use of that organ which had made him guilty."

From that moment "Samuel the Silent," as he became known, devoted his life to the study of the Talmud and other Hebrew religious writings.

But he never spoke again.

Years of Service in Model T Fords

Expenditure of few dollars may enable you to get thousands of miles from your old car

THE Model T Ford is still a great car. It led the motor industry for twenty years and it is used today by more people than any other automobile. More than eight million Model T Fords are in active service in city, town and country, and many of them can be driven for two, three and five years and even longer at very small up-keep expense.

The cost of Model T parts and of necessary labor is unusually low because of established Ford policies.

New fenders, for instance, cost from $3.50 to $5 each, with a labor charge of $1 to $2.50. Tuning up the motor and replacing commutator case, brush and vibrator points costs only $1, with a small charge for material. Brake shoes can be installed and emergency brakes equalized for a labor charge of only $1.25. A labor charge of $4 to $5 will cover the overhauling of the front axle, rebushing springs and spring perches, and straightening, aligning and adjusting wheels.

The labor charge for overhauling the average rear axle runs from $5.75 to $7. Grinding valves and cleaning carbon can be done for $3 to $4.

A set of four new pistons costs only $7. For a labor charge of $20 to $25 you can have your motor and transmission completely overhauled. Parts are extra.

All of these prices are approximate, of course, because the cost of materials needed will depend on the condition of each car. They show, however, the low cost of putting the Model T Ford in shape for thousands of miles of additional service.

See the nearest Ford dealer, therefore, and have him estimate on the cost of re-conditioning your Model T Ford. He will tell you, in advance, exactly how much the complete job will cost.

PLAIN OF PHILIPPI WILL BE REDEEMED

Has Historic Associations of Caesar and St. Paul.

Washington.—The plain of Philippi, which knew St. Paul and where, after the assassination of Julius Caesar, the Roman republican forces lost their battle with the imperialists, is the latest bit of Greece in which it is planned to rout marshes and malaria and to substitute agriculture and health.

Philippi is one of the numerous plains near the mouths of rivers on the northern shores of the Aegean sea, where careless Turkish agriculture permitted rich soil to become water-logged and marshy.

Since Greece received several million extra inhabitants as a result of the forced trek of Greeks from Turkish territory, the National Geographic society says, plans have been formulated to salvage these marshy areas of Macedonia by drainage. The valley of the Varda, near Salonika, was the area first attacked by the engineers. The plain of Philippi lies 50 miles to the east of Salonika in the valley of the little river, Angista. Ten miles south is the seashore with its port of Kavala.

Over the plain, on a rocky hill, are the ruins of the city of Philippi, named for Philip II, of Macedon. It was to converts in Philippi, after his visit and imprisonment there, that St. Paul wrote his epistle to the Philippians.

In connection with the project for draining the plain of Philippi, the Greek government also will drain the territory slightly to the west in the Struma River valley. Close to the sea this valley is occupied by Lake Ahlnos, the small remnant of a once great lake. About it are marshy regions. Farther up the valley the entire basin is intensively cultivated, constituting some of the best agricultural land in Greece. When the Philippi and Struma projects are completed, Lake Ahlnos and its marshes will have disappeared.

300,000,000 Bodies in Cemeteries of U. S.

Chicago.—More than 4,500,000 acres of land have been set aside in the United States for cemeteries and graveyards, according to a report submitted here at the annual state convention of the National Selected Morticians.

There are 80,000 burial plots in America, including village churchyards and large city cemeteries, the report indicates. Based upon an average size of 70 acres each, which is considered a conservative estimate, they would approximate the size of the land area in Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island combined.

"A village graveyard having as its patrons 500 persons contains upon an average of 600 graves after three generations. With this as a basis the United States has in excess of 300,000,000 bodies lying in legitimate graves," s' 'd Porter Lorfhg of San Antonio, addressing the morticians.

London Gets Five-Pound Topaz of Pale Blue Tint

London.—A topaz weighing just over five pounds has been added to the collection of gems in one of the national museums at South Kensington, London. It is water-clear, with a pale blue tinge, and was found in Madagascar.

The technical description states that its well developed and brilliant crystal faces are marked by complex and intricate pyramids and lines of growth, and the specimen is an instructive example of a crystal in which the process of growth has been abruptly arrested.

700-Year-Old Bell Still Rings in Swedish Town

Stockholm.—A seven-hundred-year-old church bell with a tone of unusual beauty still rings each Sunday in the little village of Saleby in the west of Sweden. According to the inscription on the bell, it has been in continuous service since 1388. The inscription is preceded by the letters A. G. L. A., believed to stand for a powerful Hebrew invocation, the words of which are "Atta Gibbor Leolam Adonai." or in translation, "Thou art eternally strong, O Lord."

SCIENCE EXPLAINS "ROCK BOUND" TOAD

Say Animals Crawled in for Hibernation.

Washington.—The possibility of a toad living for many thousands of years incased in rock, as might be inferred from the reported discovery of a toad at Frederick, Okla., in pleistocene rocks some seven hundred fifty thousand years old, is discounted by scientists and the records in scientific literature.

Many times each year there are reported discoveries of toads, frogs and other such animals incased in rocks so far buried and so solid that the farmer or workman unearthing the animal feels sure that it must have been there when the rocks were formed. But the most probable explanation given by scientists is that the animal had been in a torpor for only a relatively short time and that its obeyance of the autumnal instinct by creeping down into the earth away from the cold above had led it by some small unobserved hole or crack into the place where it is found.

Frogs Kept Sixteen Months.

Frogs, closely related to toads, were kept for sixteen months in a state of torpor during the experiments of a French scientist, Chossat, who published his results in 1843. Periods of years inanition, as the condition is scientifically termed, usually last only from fall to spring, and it is nature's method of keeping such cold-blooded creatures alive during the time when the weather is too cold on the surface and there is nothing for them to eat. Such animals are believed not uncommonly to lie in such a state for ten months to a year.

The strange and interesting condition into which such cold-blooded animals sink is quite different from the true hibernation of the hedgehog, bat and a few other mammals. All vital functions are at a minimum, the mouth, eyes and nostrils are shut, breathing is through the skin, and the heart beats very, very slowly and feebly. The temperature of the body sinks with the lowering of the surroundings but, provided the blood does not begin to freeze, the creature is able to emerge vigorously in the spring, hungry but fit and rested.

Place of Human Discoveries.

The place of discovery of the Oklahoma toad, now at the Museum of Natural History at Denver, is of scientific interest because of the evidences of early man in America that are claimed to have been found there. Arrowheads and primitive grinding implements were unearthed in the Frederick (Okla.) gravel pits in strata of the Ice age that geologists pronounce twenty-five thousand to one million years old. Most anthropologists are unwilling to concede that this continent was inhabited before the Indians came from Asia 8,000 to 25,000 years ago.

Investigation of the Eastland (Texas) horned toad that was said to have been placed in a cornerstone thirty-one years ago and resurrected alive a short time ago will be reported shortly to the scientific Journal Science by Prof. Willis G. Hewatt of the Texas Christian university. After an examination of the external features of the animal, he concluded that it was a perfectly normal specimen which had undergone winter hibernation. It was probably an old one, for the horns about the head region were considerably worn and the right hind leg had been broken but healed. Otherwise it appeared no different from a normal horned toad at this season of the year.

Cliff Dweller Rattle Uncovered by Boy

Mesa Verde, Colo.—The finest specimen of a rattle belonging to the ancient cliff dwellers ever found in Mesa Verde national park has just been discovered by Deric Nusbaum, fifteen-year-old son of the park superintendent. The rattle and other prehistoric relics found with it have been presented to the park museum by their finder.

The rattle was found in all probability exactly as it was left by some cliff dweller eight to twelve centuries ago. It is considered remarkable that so fragile a specimen, composed of thin gourd rind, could have survived so long a time.

The rattle consists of two disks of gourd, about three and a half inches in diameter, cut and rubbed down to fit perfectly together. Yucca fiber was used to fasten the two halves of the rattle and the noise was produced by small sandstone pebbles in the hollow case. The handle of the rattle was a stick of mountain mahogany.
